Rules and Regulations

All AUI rules and regulations apply to exchange and study abroad students. Rules to pay specific attention to are:

- 1) Strict sex segregation in dormitories/student residences. Males and females are not allowed to enter dormitories designated for the opposite sex at any time of the day or night. Breaking this rule will lead to disciplinary action which is usually expulsion from the university. Please note that there are only a few sex/gender segregated spaces on campus including the locker rooms in the gymnasium, some restrooms, and some areas of the mosque.
- 2) No illegal drugs or alcohol of any kind are allowed on campus. Breaking this rule will lead to disciplinary action up to and including expulsion from the university.
- 3) A midnight curfew is in place during weeknights Sunday to Thursday. Students who willfully break the curfew will not be turned away from the university which is always to be considered a secure location. However their action may lead to disciplinary action up to and including expulsion from the university depending on circumstance.
- 4) Attendance is compulsory in all classes. Missing three or more classes without an excused absence will lead to the grade "withdraw failing" (WF). Full details are in the Student Handbook.

Accommodation on Campus

All exchange and study abroad students are required to live in university housing (on-campus). Normally, housing is based on double occupancy and every effort is made to pair international students with a Moroccan counterpart. Single rooms are not available. Housing for a married couple provided that both are students is possible but available on a case by case basis. Students with children cannot be accommodated.

Housing Fees outside regular semesters

There is a charge for housing during end of semester breaks. This fee will be based on the daily rate for the room. For example, in 2017 this fee was 47 MAD per night for a double room. Students are not normally asked to remove belongings from the room during the winter break between semesters.

Language Courses

Language courses in Arabic, French, Spanish and sometimes Berber are offered each semester. All language classes use the immersion method in which only the target language is used. A placement test during the orientation and registration period is required for any student requesting a language course after the beginning level. If there are less than 5 students, a course cannot be offered but every reasonable attempt will be made to accommodate international students. Very advanced students of French will be placed into classes of Moroccan students polishing their language skills in French as second language learners which are labeled FRN. French as a foreign language are labeled FRE. International students/non native speakers of Arabic normally only register in Arabic classes labeled ARA. Very advanced learners of Arabic may be placed in to classes labeled ARB with Moroccan and other students of native or near native ability. Intensive Arabic courses are only offered in the summer as part of the Arabic and North African Studies summer program.
